RESPUESTAS

1. Ict systems

1.1 Make a list of the ICT systems you use at work or at home. What's their purpose? What are their components?

Possible answers

At home:

I have a PAN with a PDA and a mobile phone to share and transmit information. I'd like to have a LAN with more than one computer, sharing devices. I'd like to live in an 'intelligent home' where different gadget and sensors are linked and controlled by a central computer.

I have a digital with lots of channels, which I can interact with in different ways.

I have teletext on the television, with 24 hour information.

At work:

We have an information system with the database of customers, products, etc. A WLAN where all the computers share information and devices, a factory assembly line with robotic elements.

2. Living with computers

2.2 Make a list of the ways you use computers at work and in your free time. Do you think you suffer from technological dependence?

Possible answers:

At work, I use computers: To write letters and memos; to make calculations and graphics; to keep records of clients and suppliers; to find out information on the web; to communicate with other companies or institutions via email or video conferencing; to prepare business presentations; to store information and do tasks related to my job.

In my free time, I use computers: to play games, to retouch photographs, to download music from the web; to chat with friends and relatives; to watch video clips and full-length movies; to do online shopping.
